00:06:03 Susana Garcia Betancourt: My invisible win has been that I wasn't aware of all the people I can help.

00:06:10 DeeDee Fitch: Way more interaction on my content

00:06:12 Louise Edwards: invisible win....a client for whom I did a AO back in Jan and who really didn't respond despite my outreach placed an order this week!!!! out of the blue

00:06:45 Newelle McDonald she/her: I did 4 authentic reach outs to brand new, friends of friends, with love and curiosity. Was such fun!
00:07:00 Denise Rainier: My invisible win was getting over my awkwardness of reaching out to people I haven't spoken with in more than 5 years (former co-workers) without worrying about their response.
00:07:07 Charlene: Reached out to someone that I find hard to talk to, and she responded readily and positively!

00:08:05 Karen - Linn County: I was able to let go of the outcome of a conversation that led to me inquiring if they were open to more information and they declined. I blessed and released until they are ready for more information instead of wanting to convince them they NEEDED what I offer :-)

00:14:50 Coach Jess Mitchell: Reacted to "I see myself as a le..." with ❤️

00:14:51 Louise Edwards: Because I am addressing problems in my service posts, they always seem like they start negative. Is that normal?

00:15:05 JoAnn Nicholas: Initial outreach to someone I haven't talked to about health

00:16:02 Coach Jess Mitchell: Love that you call her ginger! So smart

00:16:18 Cindy Templeton: <https://www.facebook.com/share/p/1CNz7Zs796/>

00:17:01 DeeDee Fitch: With all the interaction I've had I still have no problems show up to help solve. Maybe my content is too vague?

00:17:19 Lisa Bomers: Invitation post info which I think we will be getting more info on. Getting more engagement but having a lot of same people like service/authenticity posts which doesn't give me a ton of AO or VAFU to follow up with. .

00:17:43 Karen - Linn County: Replying to "Invitation post info..."
Same here Lisa

00:18:06 Denise Rainier: I'm grappling with three things: 1) I may want to just do a service post but it may not directly relate to a specific product or my company doesn't have a product for that 'thing. Is it okay to still post? 2) The wording "what is painful for your customer" is hard to define. 3) I need to study more of the Value-added content dialogue. I'm grappling with continuing conversation with somebody who said they were interested in a product months ago and still haven't 'committed'.

00:19:11 Pam Reece: I still struggle with moving from the authentic outreach to value-added follow up. The issue is getting people to a point of sharing their problem. I feel like I'm connecting well - but I haven't shared a lot about my new business - perhaps that is not helping?

00:20:13 Denise Rainier: Reacted to "People are watching ..." with 👍

00:20:15 Lisa Bomers: Reacted to "Same here Lisa" with ❤️

00:21:39 Doaa: Likes from people that I've reached out to before that haven't responded. New likes from family and friends but I'm resisting outreach to them because I've reached out to them before and don't want to alienate them.

00:21:54 Tina: What kind of content would you call this?
I'm finding myself incorporating product with myself without saying what it is-
Is this considered more than one type of content?
Could this be service and authenticity as one post?

00:22:08 Jeni Mauldin: I get it, Louise! It's so hard to let results go when you have been taught to measure success in results.

00:23:33 Joanne Clement: Love that! Mirror

00:23:41 Sally Anderson: i agree on the chat gpt totally made me cry

00:23:45 Coach Tammy Asmus: Reacted to "Love that! Mirror" with ❤️

00:23:50 Coach Tammy Asmus: Reacted to "i agree on the chat ..." with 🤗

00:24:27 Denise Rainier: Sometimes, I feel like I'm really reaching to figure out what to put into ChatGPT with the prompts.

00:25:12 Tina: WOW!!! I need to shatter that old mirror

00:26:32 Rachael Clark: I've uploaded some of my own posts to help it get a feel of how I write.

00:26:43 Susana Garcia Betancourt: That's amazing

00:28:32 Susana Garcia Betancourt: That's how I am doing it. Im only using voice

00:29:12 Kathryn Aceves: I have been using chat gpt for awhile and I have a relationship with it. LOL

00:36:15 Denise Rainier: Replying to "Loved this conversat..."

I am posting every day this week. I have modified the ChatGPT responses to my words. I still feel a little bit awkward, but I'm going to do it regardless.

00:36:24 Newelle McDonald she/her: Yes. I lost some dear friends when I showed the authenticity of grieving the loss of my husband.

00:40:57 Newelle McDonald she/her: Replying to "Yes. I lost some dea..."

Yes Kristy. That's so very true. This whole journey has given me a lot more compassion for those who are frightened of it. Of COURSE they are! The culture doesn't allow us to learn about grief until we're in it. I need to have mercy on them and most importantly, to have mercy on myself! ❤️
